BULLET-BELT SIZE INFORMATION

M60, 30-06, and M77 Bullet-belts (403, 404, 406 line) are the large bullets, where M16 (405 line) are smaller. Bullet belts are commonly found in 4 different strip lengths or "sizes". Since your customers probably wear their bullet belts loose and hanging from the hips, the strip length does not correspond with traditional leather belt sizes. Most people add from 4 to 6 inches onto a bullet belt from their pants size. Size varies according to customer preference, and since bullet rounds can be removed one-by-one to get the exact size, it is recommended to buy larger - then remove a round at a time until the exact size desired is obtained.

BELT ATTACHMENT

Bullet-Belts are a strip of bullets that are connected by a metal link. Bullet belts can be attached by usually snapping the hook on the first end of the belt to the bullet on the last end. If the hook is too difficult to attach onto the last bullet, another method can be used. The last bullet will slide out of the two hooks that keep it in place. When the last bullet is slid out, you will have two hooks on the last end. Put the hook on the first end between the hooks on the last end, where the last bullet used to be. Then slide the bullet through all three hooks. This should secure the belt. Since bullet-belts are unlike regular belts, to take the belt off, you can break the links anywhere by a quick twist of a bullet. Then reattach where you broke the link.
